Doings At City Council Meeting . . .

By the time the city council had worked down the agenda to the matter of fluoridation of the Monterey Peninsula water supply, Wednesday night, there was a packed house at city hall of Carmel citizens who differed in opinion with one another as well as with the city council.

City Clerk Peter Mawdsley read the Carmel Business Association's request that the city council appoint a committee to study the question of fluoridation. This he followed with letters from citizens favoring the council's previous stand when they had tabled fluoridation on the grounds that it was outside their province. (About six per cent of the people served by the California Water and Telephone company live in the city limits of Carmel.) The letters were from Mrs. Edgar Bissant, C. Edward Graves, Mary Burtmeyer, Mrs. George W. Beeman, Mrs. Edith Love and Mary Louise Schneebarger.

They termed fluoridation an infringement on individual liberties, compulsory medication and said that it would set a precedent that would lead to further regimentation. C. Edward Graves said that those who wanted treated water could obtain the fluorine at drug stores and put it in their own drinking water without forcing it on everybody, whether they wanted it or not. Mrs. Love and Mrs. Schneebarger wrote that there was a lack of agreement as to its value and safety, and that it was a medical not a civic problem.

Mawdsley then read a letter from Mrs. William Arleigh Smith, president of the Carmel Parent-Teacher Association, saying that fluoridation had been recommended by the State Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, county, state and national dental associations and the county health department, inclosing a bulletin from the last.

Mayor Allen Knight asked his councilmen for opinions.

Councilman Donald Craig said that the same water goes to other communities; that Carmel is only a small part of the area served by the company. He thought that this was another case like the Mardi Gras. "People take advantage of Carmel. Whenever they have something they want to put over, they try to start it here because Carmel has drawing power." Where so many people were affected outside the jurisdiction of the city council, he thought that if fluoridation is really wanted, there should be a county election where the people would have a chance to vote for it. As for recommendations of the American Dental Association, "The tooth paste I use says 'recommended by the American Dental Association', but do you suppose I'd try to force everybody to use it, whether they wanted to or not?"

Councilman John Chitwood, commissioner of health and safety, said that public health is a broad subject. "There are so many things we could do for health. We tried prohibition." He added that fluoridation is still in the experimental stage, but if the people wanted it, it should be voted for on a county-wide basis. It was not a

Russia Cures All Through Pavlov's Famous Dog; Carmel Psychiatrist Tells Of Sensation At Convention

A worldwide sensation at the Fourth International Congress on Mental Health held recently in Mexico, D. F., as reported The Pine Cone by Dr. Friedy Heisler, Carmel psychiatrist, was the startling contribution of the Russian delegation to the program. For their first participation in the Swiss-organized world federation of psychiatric authorities, anthropologists, psychiatric workers, public health groups and related councils, the Russians submitted an unscheduled paper which offered as specific for universal mental health the Pavlov theory, and disposed summarily of a question-and-answer period.

Great Events Already Casting Their Shadows

It's going to be a wonderful election. On April 8, Carmel citizens will elect three city councilmen, a city clerk, a city treasurer and vote on whether or not they want to repeal the city sales tax.

Francis Whitaker, chairman of the Citizens' League for Repeal, told the Pine Cone this week that he has called in the petitions to be notarized, and will take them over to Salinas to check each name with the great register. Already in are petitions bearing 325 signatures; still out are an estimated 150. This will give more than enough to put the ordinance on the ballot.

Councilmen whose terms expire are: Mayor Allen Knight, Police Commissioner Andy Martin and Street Commissioner Gene Ricketts. None have stated whether they will be candidates for re-election.

City Clerk Peter Mawdsley's term expires as does City Treasurer Harry Hilbert. Both will be candidates for re-election, they say.

Filing date for nomination papers opens on February 8, and closes on February 28. Registration for voters who wish to cast a ballot in this election closes February 14.

Author Of Hasty Heart, Which Opens Tonight At Sunset Auditorium, Served With Larry Barretto In Burma Theatre

Opening tonight at Sunset Auditorium and playing again tomorrow night, The Hasty Heart offers Peninsula audiences the John Patrick drama which has proved popular the country over. This moving play which deals with the emotional conflicts of a stern young Scot brings the original cast of Actors' Theatre's first playing of this show last November 30 and December 1 with only one change; The Colonel will be portrayed by Nick Le Feuvre. Ric Masten plays the Scot; Peg Miner, The Nurse; Allan Greif, Yank; Nick Pappas, Tommy; Willard Branson, Blossom; Jim Hare, Kiwi; Gene Eplett, the Orderly, and Murray Wight, Digger.

John Patrick, the author of The Hasty Heart, seems to have many links with Carmel as he lived here and wrote his first play here in the 30's, and in 1942 it was the Peninsula's Laurence Barretto serving in New York, enlisting men, who sent Patrick overseas with the American Field Service as an ambulance driver with the British Army. In the China-Burma-India campaigns, Barretto served as war correspondent and wrote several published stories about the Field Service, Medical Corps and other branches of the Armed Forces. And it was here at this time that Patrick took notes and outlined his experiences with the field hospitals (the inspiration for his now famous play, The Hasty Heart). The men from whom he drew his characterizations were all real and they are real to audiences through his brilliant writing and narrative in his dialogue and background.

Under the experienced direction of Charles Thomas, who during the war years directed shows overseas in Special Service, this play achieves a vitality and authenticity which makes it highly exciting entertainment.

IT'S NOT OFFICIAL UNTIL IT'S IN THE PINE CONE

The Carmel Volunteer Fire Department has a typewriter. And guess who donated it? Gene Ricketts, one of their own members, a captain, in fact, who didn't know they needed a typewriter until he read the appeal in the Pine Cone. So you see . . .

Man Who Wanted Pink Sidewalks Retires Again

Bert Heron, whose second term on the city planning commission expires this month, has asked not to be considered for reappointment. He says he's too busy to give city affairs the attention they deserve and there must be plenty of people who have more time than he has who are qualified for the job.

This isn't the first time he has withdrawn from public office when

Local Foundation Has Plan To Help Senior Citizens

By L. A. Williams

Sponsors of the Carmel Foundation have been steadily at work over several months developing a workable plan of house services to help persons in and about Carmel who have grown old to live in greater security and with some measure of comfort.

A plan has now been evolved by which such services to our senior citizens can be provided under the auspices of the Foundation on a full-pay, part-pay, or no-pay basis.

To initiate the program and set up a working organization, it is necessary to have funds, with which to guarantee that the services can be maintained with efficiency and continuity. The sum needed is not large but assurance that it will be forthcoming is imperative before further action can be taken.

It is proposed to make available from a central agency nine types of services to persons 65 years of age and older who live alone and need such services, namely hourly nursing service; hourly housekeeping service; cooking service in the house (on a limited basis); shopping and marketing service; sitting service; daily check or call; necessary transportation; mending service; garden watering. All these services are limited to persons within the stated age levels and may or may not be paid for the recipients, depending upon circumstances.

Pat Cunningham's Still Life To Show At Legion Of Honor

Patricia Cunningham has been invited to show her still life of tangerines at the Palace of the Legion of Honor's Fifth Annual Show of American Artists in San Francisco, which opens January 24.

Pacific slope art event of the year, the exhibition will display the work of 150 top-ranking American painters.

Thomas Carr Howe, curator of the Palace of the Legion of Honor, asked Mrs. Cunningham to enter the still life after he saw it on exhibit at the Slaughter Gallery in San Francisco.

Patricia Cunningham is the only Carmel artist to be asked to exhibit in the show, though another Carmel Art Association member, Abel Warshawsky of Monterey has been invited.

his own work piled up, things were going smoothly in city affairs, and he thought the town could get along without him for a while. Bert Heron, in and out of office, has been a force, albeit gentle and persuasive, in this community since 1908.

He founded the Forest Theatre and made it nationally famous with the plays he produced there. He established the first place of business in the town that made any pretense at attractiveness, thereby starting a trend that has contributed almost as much to Carmel's fame—"a city of charming little shops"—as its Forest Theatre. During one of his terms as mayor of the city he unwittingly plunged Carmel into almost every newspaper in the country by coming out for pink sidewalks. Bert Heron, who loathes the word promotion,

"Besides, I didn't say pink," Heron says plaintively. "They were talking about putting in sidewalks in the business district and I said, 'Let's not have just drab old ugly' (Continued on Page Four)

Bing's Big Golf Tournament Gets Underway Today

The spectacular $10,000 National Pro-Amateur Golf Championship is on. Today the foursomes, including such pairs as Bob Hope and Jimmy Demaret, Ed Lowery and Byron Nelson, Phil Harris and E. J. Dutch Harrison, Bob Simmers and Lloyd Mangrum tee off at Cypress Point Club. On Saturday they move to Monterey Peninsula Country Club and Sunday play the final 18 holes of the 54-hole tournament at Pebble Beach. Half pro, half amateur, there will be 150 golfers in the tournament.

Bing Crosby pays all the bills, and all proceeds after federal taxes go to charity. From the last five tournaments, nearly $63,000 has gone into youth centers, Polio organizations, veterans hospitals and church schools have also benefited.

Twenty thousand people witnessed the event last January, the greatest gallery in 33 years of tournament golf on the Monterey Peninsula, including the National Amateur, and probably the biggest gallery in the history of California golf.

Byron Nelson, who came out of retirement to win the pro money last January, told Bing the tourney was one of the most wonderful in the world. Grantland Rice called it the greatest golf tournament being played in the world today.

Gallery fee is $2 Friday, $2.50 Saturday and $3 Sunday, or a flat $5 for a season ticket, including admission to Del Monte Forest.

FREMONT RETURNS TO CARMEL GYM TOMORROW NIGHT

Fremont High School of Sunnyvale, two-times winner of the Carmel Invitational Basketball Tournament, returns to the scene of their triumphs tomorrow night when their classy lightweight and varsity quintets tangle with the fast-improving Padres. In an earlier meeting this season, the Carmel lightweights hung a defeat on the Fremont Papooses, and the Fremont varsity retaliated by downing the Padre heavies. Tomorrow night's varsity clash will give a good indication of how the two teams stack up for the Carmel Tournament which is slated for February 28, 29, and March 1st. In the last two tournaments, Fremont and Carmel have met in the finals, Fremont winning out both times. From all indications, the Indians are loaded again this season, having dropped only one tilt in meeting the strongest teams in the San Jose area. Big Jim Reynolds, holdover from last year's championship team, sparks the Indians this year and he has plenty of help from a six-foot starting lineup.

Tomorrow night's lightweight tussle could steal the spotlight from the varsity game as both teams are traveling at a red-hot clip. Since losing to the Carmel Babes, Papooses have hung up a string of seven victories at the expense of SCVAL and PAL teams. The little Padres looked good defeating the strong Monterey lightweights last Saturday night and could cop the nod in tomorrow's toss-up game.

An added attraction will be offered during the halftime of both games, when the eighth grade teams of Sunnyvale and Carmel mix it up. The Carmel eighth-graders are undefeated this season but will be chewing off quite a chunk against Sunnyvale. Sunnyvale is sparked by Bud Mathiesen, son of Fremont's six-foot eight-inch coach, who is touted as the hottest cage prospect in the Sunnyvale area. Carmel's team will be manned by George Wightman, Mervyn Sutton, Randy Hotelling, Mike Mosolf, Roger Newell, John Thompson, Ray Rapier, Mark Hildebrand, Kyrk Reid, and Dick Ogden.

STEALHEAD FISHING SLOW; HEAVIER RUN EXPECTED

With the closing of the hunting season on December 31, the sportsmen are now turning all of their attention to fishing. In spite of the recent heavy rains the steelhead fishing has been slow. A few small fish have been caught, but a much heavier run is anticipated when the water clears.

Abalone season closes January 14, with only one more fair minus tide to go after the elusive shell fish. A very few of our hardy anglers were out on the extremely low tides of the holiday week because of the very rough water and cold weather.

The best band tailed pigeon shooting of the recent season was in the chews ridge area as most of the birds were concentrated in that locality. The total kill was reduced a great deal by the rain and snow during the season making both the trip up the very steep grade and the hunting difficult.

Now is the time for the sportsman to check his guns for the new year, before he gives them a final cleaning and oiling he should determine if they need rebluing or mechanical repairs and have it done now instead of waiting for the first open season.

For the newcomer to Carmel fishing and hunting information may be obtained from your local sports shops or by phoning the California fish and game commission.

CARMEL WINS FROM GILROY TILT AT KING CITY TONIGHT

Playing their best games of the current campaign, the Carmel High School basketball teams notched a double win over Gilroy High last Friday night at the Padre pavilion. The little Padres put together a sound brand of basketball to subdue the Gilroy Ponies, 34 to 16, in a game which was Carmel all the way. Jerry Colman, Bob Laugenour, and Bob Campbell provided the scoring punch for the Padres, Colman hitting for 15 points and the two Bobs getting a half dozen apiece. The rugged Carmel man-to-man defense bothered the visitors no little and completely bottled up the Pony offense during the second half. Mike Ricketts, Bill Chalkley, Tom Brosnan, and Jack McCormack were particularly effective in throttling the scoring efforts of the visitors.

Carmel's varsity, played to a stand-off during the first half, solved the Gilroy offense and defense during the second half to romp to a 32-22 victory. The Padre fly-paper defense blanked the Mustangs during the first quarter and allowed but three points until the game had less than three minutes to go. Henry Overin's alert guarding of Vrigna, ace Gilroy scorer and play-maker, completely smothered the scoring attack of the potent Gilroy quintet. The Carmel five played as a smooth unit throughout the game and maintained game control from the start. Myron Branson, Stu Emery, Lanny Doolittle, Bob Updike, and Henry Overin carried most of the load for the Padres and turned in a fine team performance.

Carmel's victory over Gilroy places them in a tie with King City for top spot in the B division of the CCAL. The King City varsity beat Gilroy, 28 to 27, in an overtime tussle earlier in the season, and the KC gang also whipped Gonzales. Tonight's meeting between Carmel and King City at the valley hamlet should go a long way toward deciding the eventual winner of the B division this year.

The Padres got over Gonzales and Gilroy by approximately the same scores that King City beat the same teams so tonight's crucial should be loaded with fireworks.

The King City lightweights edged the Gilroy lights and lost to Gonzales as did Carmel, setting up another natural in tonight's preliminary clash.

THROUGH THE HOOP

The out-manned Carmel High School basketball teams pulled the upset of the current season last Saturday night at Monterey when they dumped both the Toreador quintets. In the lightweight clash, the Padres weren't conceded even an outside chance to beat the classy Monterey lights, but the willing Carmel Babes rose to the occasion and wupped them, 37 to 31. Bob Laugenour, Carmel forward, regained some of his 1951 form to lead the scorers with 18 points. "Twas a good thing most of the Carmel varsity had football experience as the feature tilt was marked by rugged play from start to finish. However, the hard-blocking Padres survived the ordeal and captured the coveted victory, 41 to 33. Lanny Doolittle, playing the best basketball of his career, sparked the Padres on both offense and defense. Lanny did a fine job on Monterey's Charley Howell, a 6-6 pivot man, holding the skyscraper to three field goals. A return match between the two teams is scheduled for January 25th at the Carmel gym.

Monterey Peninsula College returns to the hardwoods tonight, engaging the San Benito Junior College at the Monterey gym. San Benito set a record in the Modesto tournament, defeating for a score of 105-31 skunking. The Lobos are a colorful basketball team, playing the fire-wagon type ball which keeps the ball moving at a swift clip. Larry Segovia, a peerless ball-handler, leads the Lobo attack.

A line on future basketball prospects in Carmel will be given tomorrow night when the Carmel eighth-graders tangle with the Sunnyvale eights between the halves of the lightweight and varsity tilts. There is pretty good hoop timber hiding in the eighth grade. . . . Carmel's annual basketball tournament blossoms into a three-day affair this year as the California Interscholastic Federation rules that a team may not play more than one game per day. Should make for an ever better tournament. . . . Intramural hoop play has started at the high school with the Freshman class putting the damper on the high and mighty seniors, 34 to 23, and the Sophomores whipping the juniors, 28 to 18. Garry Nielsen and David Castagna, the big guns for the freshmen, and Don Leja leading the sophomores. Carmel's varsity basketball team knocked off another one last Wednesday afternoon as the Salinas Cowboys fell before the accurate shooting of Padres, 34 to 25. The hustling Padres stole a big lead in the first half, winging to a 20-4 margin as the halftime buzzer sounded. The Cowboys closed the gap in the final half but the local preps kept a safe margin. Overin, Updike, Branson, and Doolittle divided the scoring for the Padres, the left-handed Overin canning an even dozen. Don't miss the Fremont game at the Carmel gym tomorrow night. The classy preps from Sunnyvale boast one of the finest teams in Northern California and a dilly of a battle is in store. Preliminary tilt starts at 7 o'clock.

BADMINTON CLASSES AT HIGH SCHOOL GYM

After a semester of inactivity, the regular adult school badminton classes are again in full swing at the Carmel High School gymnasium. Each Tuesday and Thursday night from 7:30 to 10, badminton enthusiasts may engage in the popular bird and bat sport. For beginners, there will be instruction in the fundamentals of rules, strokes, and court play. Competition for beginners, intermediate, and advanced players is available and the play is coeducational.

Players must have their own gym shoes and birds, but the racquets are furnished at the gym. Showers and towels are available for those who desire the locker room facilities. George Mosolf, high school tennis coach, is instructing the badminton course and welcomes beginners along with the experts.

It's Slim's For An "Honest" Meal

Most people thought Slim Benson would probably go broke when he first started his system of letting customers figure out their own checks over at his big diner on the highway.

Slim trusts them to pay for as much as they eat—you simply tell Sally, his cashier, the amount of your bill. It works, too. Take the other day when Buck Harris told Sally his bill was 35¢.

Now I was right there with Buck and I knew all he had was coffee and pie which comes to a quarter. "How come thirty-five cents?" I asked Buck. "Had an extra cup of java the other day, Joe, and forgot all about it—'til now," he says.

From where I sit, most people are basically honest—and that goes for their opinions, too, even though they may be different than our own. I like a glass of beer with my dinner; you may prefer something else . . . but we all ought to be allowed to "figure it out" ourselves.

Distinguished Flying Cross For Maj. Edgar Leslie

Major Edgar C. Leslie, Executive Officer of the 72nd Strategic Reconnaissance Squadron, Heavy, Travis Air Force Base, California, son of Mrs. Wanda Leslie of Carmel, was recently awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for "extraordinary achievement while participating in aerial flight". In an informal ceremony at the base, the medal and citation were presented to the Major by the Commanding Officer of the 72nd Squadron, Lt. Colonel Martin B. Schofield. The citation reads as follows:

"Major Edgar C. Leslie distinguished himself by extraordinary achievement while participating in aerial flight as Aircraft Commander of a B-29 aircraft on 7 May, 1951. Major Leslie was leading two flights of B-29 aircraft in an attack against the strategically important supply center of Pyongyang. During the bomb run, intense and accurate anti-aircraft fire was encountered which severely damaged Major Leslie's plane. In spite of the damage suffered by his aircraft he pressed the attack to the briefed target and maintained a perfect bombing platform, enabling the bombardier to obtain an excellent hit on the target. Major Leslie then called aid for a disabled aircraft in his flight, obtaining emergency landing field weather information for the aircraft commander. In the mean-

Adult School Off To Big Start; New Classes Popular

In spite of cold and rain, when school opened for the grown-ups Monday night there was a bang-up turn out. Chuck Dawson, adult school principal told the Pine Cone yesterday.

The new classes "drew like honey," he said. Twenty-five signed up for August Armanasco's beginning French conversation class. Antonio Segura's Spanish class had an enrollment of 27. Driver training is full up, already. There is room for a few more in the beginning typing class, but applicants must "mean business" according to Dawson, since it's an intensive, six week's course designed for people who really want to learn to type. This is Lloyd Miller's class. He's business education teacher at Carmel High School.

Not only the new classes got off under good auspices. People turned out in substantial numbers for the ever-popular "old standby's." These include charcoal portraiture, machine woodworking, pottery, sketching and painting, citizenship, theatre workshop, family life education, great books, Bach chorus, Men's Chorus, Mothersingers, musical awareness, symphony orchestra, badminton, folk dancing, and world affairs study.

No tuition is charged for the adult school classes which are tailored to the desires and tastes of the community. Anyone who does not find the subject in which he is interested in the program may have a class started for him if he can persuade 19 others to sign up with him.

Complete schedule may be obtained by phoning 7-3020 between 7:00 and 10:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday or 7-6483 between 1:00 and 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

When it was discovered that eleven one-hundred pound bombs had hung up in the bomb bay of his own aircraft. Five of the bombs were laying loosely upon the other six, fully armed with fuses spinning. Realizing the peril of the situation, he immediately depressurized his aircraft and instructed two crew members to dislodge the bombs. He also had the radio operator transmit the coordinates of the disabled aircraft which had crashed, and the destination of other damaged aircraft. Major Leslie's outstanding professional skill and exemplary devotion to duty reflected great credit upon himself, the Far East Air Force, and the United States Air Force.

Junior Audubon Cover Waterfront On Sat. Field Trip

By Tweed Champe and Sharon Wynkoop

When dark sky threaten And clouds hang low Where can the Junior Audubon Club go?

Last Saturday, January 5, the skies were threatening but we knew there would be plenty of birds out and we didn't have to go far to see them.

We drove to Monterey by way of Jacks Peak. On the way we saw a few California jays. The first place we went to in Monterey was Washerwomen's Bay (near the cemetery). There we saw many different water birds: mallard ducks, coots—with their odd, flat like feet—a pair of muddy ducks, a few "barnyard" ducks, a Heerman's gull and several other species of gulls, quite a few Brewer's black birds, and a grebe. We couldn't see the grebe well enough to identify it.

The next stop was at Hopkins Marine Station. There we saw a horned grebe, Brandts and Bairds cormorants, and a few brown pelicans. Two sea lions were resting on the floats. Our leader, Mr. Fremont Ballou, called our attention to the sea anemones and the hundreds of acorn barnacles covering most of the rocks.

Then we went to Lovers' Point where we saw a rock formation called the Devil's Slide.

Our next stop was at Cornmeal Beach where we saw about 28 Western grebes sleeping on the water. They sleep with their heads laid on their backs.

At another place along the way we stopped at a rather marshy area where we spotted a surf scoter and some canvasback ducks.

Our last stop was the Butterfly Trees. When we arrived we found that the butterflies had been driven away from the trees by a strong wind and had settled on some other trees about three blocks away.

Then home. We had seen lots and learned a lot. Mr. Ballou was our leader.

Junior Audubons were: Church-ill Carmalt, Charles Agie, Skippy Hackman, Carol Gien, Sharon Wyncoop and Tweed Champe.

Big Scout-o-rama Planned By Local Troops For Feb. 8-9

Monterey Peninsula Boy Scout troops, including explorers and cubs, will observe National Boy Scout Week, with a Scout-O-Rama at the fair grounds February 8 and 9.

Over 1100 scouts will take part in the project, Howard J. Muir, general chairman, told the Pine Cone this week.

In a series of three shows in the Fairgrounds Exhibition Hall, the Scout-O-Rama will feature the work and hobbies of the 15 Cub Packs, 18-Scout Troops and four Explorer Units, comprising roughly half of all boys of eligible age in Marina, Fort Ord, Seaside, Monterey, Pacific Grove, Carmel and Carmel Valley, Muir said.

Each Cub Pack or Scout Troop is sponsored by a church, fraternal, service club, veterans or other organization. Unit leaders all serve on a strictly volunteer basis.

Scout-O-Rama admission price will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children under 12. Profits from the big show-exhibition will be available pro rata to all units to assist any Scout from an under-privileged family, and for purchase of camping and handcraft equipment and uniforms.

Beside Muir, as general chairman, other Scout-O-Rama officials are John Morrill, chairman Arrangements Committee and Frank Catalano, chairman Ticket Sales Committee. The entire show and all unit participation is under volunteer leadership. Advisor is W. P. Moller, district Scout executive. Head of the Peninsula Boy Scout movement is Edmond M. Sullivan. Vice chairman is Robert E. Ross; district commissioner is John Morrill.

JOHN H. EAGAL, JR., MARRIES

The marriage of John H. Eagal, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Eagal, Sr. of Carmel and Stockton, and Miss Doris De Candia of Stockton took place in Church of the Wayfarer last Wednesday afternoon, January 2, with Dr. K. Fillmore Gray officiating. Dr. Gray read the marriage service before a small party of relatives and friends who gathered in the chapel for the quiet, informal wedding.

grey sidewalks. Let's have colors, pastel colors... green, blue, pink, lavender... but pink is a funny word, and the newspapers grabbed it and forgot all about green, blue and lavender."

He considers more important than the pink sidewalk incident, the wall and parkway down the middle of Ocean Avenue that was put in during his mayoralty. The council was split over the matter and so, characteristically, was the town.

"People had the habit of parking their cars under the pines in the center of Ocean Avenue. The merchants didn't want to lose that parking for their customers. But the cars were injuring the roots of the pine trees and we built the parkway to save the trees."

So they had fights over parking even in the mid-thirties! But Heron says Carmelites have been contentious as far back as he can remember, and he can remember Carmel of 1908. He's been playing in stock repertoire for several years and came here to write. Mary Austin had been here and left, but De Neal Morgan and Fred Bechdolt were here, and Ferdinand Burgdorff and George Sterling. "The greatest American poet. I believed that even before I knew him, his brilliant mind, his great kindness."

Two years away from the theatre was about all Heron could stand. There was no theatre here so in 1910 he hunted a likely spot in the woods up in Eighty Acres. The rest is history, well known, recalled with pardonable pride, by all Carmel citizens.

What parts had he enjoyed most of the many he'd played in the theatre he founded?

"Romeo's fun. I always liked to play Romeo."

"More than Hamlet!"

"Hamlet's a great part. Much greater than Romeo. But I always had more fun playing Romeo."

The favorite Juliet to his Romeo? Jadwiga Noskowiak. Helen Lane was a lovely Juliet, too, but he wasn't Romeo in that production, but Mercutio, a part he always enjoyed. He remembers with amusement the season when he played in succession Oberon and Falstaff. "Had to make myself as small as possible in the first production and then build up big in the next." He played Falstaff in two Shakespeare festivals, played Malvolio once, Mercutio twice, and the Fool in Twelfth Night, "a lovely part." But the list unwinds through the years, and while he was directing and playing parts in Shakespeare in the Forest Theatre, and serving on the city council, and writing from time to time (he celebrated the birth of the Carmel Pine Cone in verse) he was busy with the business of making a living.

In 1918 he set up his book store on Ocean Avenue. At the time there was a bakery and a grocery and a hardware store, and several others, strictly utilitarian in function and appearance. Heron's book shop, with a window display of books and prints attractively arranged, the oatmeal wall paper inside the shop, along with subtle use of paint on woodwork, was the first shop of artistic pretensions in the village. "It was a village in those days."

In 1925 he and his wife Helena planned the Seven Arts Building. Percy Parkes was the contractor and Clay Otto the engineer. A beautiful structure, it had shops on the ground floor attractively arranged around courts, tucked in indentations, and studios upstairs, one of which, now used by the Carmel Art Institute for painting classes, was for many years the meeting place of the Shakespeare reading group, presided over by Heron, and sponsored by the Carmel Adult School.

So Bert's withdrawing from public life. Very well, but the Pine Cone isn't going to go into the tail-spin it did in 1941 when he resigned from the city council.

"As Mayor and as councilman he was Carmel's representative of the cultural arts. He gave his strength to preserving in good measure the earlier landmarks of 'old Carmel,' and has frequently fought, a lone warrior, against encroachments of inevitable change. On the council he stood for the fine old things of a passing era. When he leaves it, that body will lose the heart of the old village—good brains will remain but something more important will be gone."

Gone where? Bert was right there around the corner. And when he was needed, he came back and put in two terms on the planning commission. And we suspect that when he's needed again, as he inevitably will be, he'll be there to lend a hand.

Dr. Neubauer Speaker At Kiwanis Meeting

Dr. Fritz Neubauer, retired astronomy professor of the University of California, now living in Pacific Grove, and keeping his hand in teaching scientific courses at Monterey College, gave an informal talk on South America, where he has visited several times, at the Kiwanis meeting Thursday noon.

He first visited Carmel in 1916 and found a sleepy village whose city fathers were aghast at a proposal to pave Ocean Avenue. Returning in 1922, he found Carmel so crowded that several of his old cronies were moving out into Carmel Valley to avoid the congestion.

His first visit to South America was in 1901 in a sailing ship when he studied navigation. It was an 80-day trip around the horn. In 1911, he saw a native pounding away at a dock every working day for the two months he was there but observed no progress. In 1922, he saw the same man pounding away at the same pier. Still no noticeable progress. But last year on his visit he saw a fine modern

Kathleen Norris To Address G. O. P. Women's Club Here

Kathleen Norris, the novelist and journalist, will speak at a joint meeting of the local Monterey Peninsula Republican Women's Club and Republican Women, Monterey Area, on Tuesday, January 15, at 3:30 o'clock in the Carmel Woman's Clubhouse. The public is invited to hear Mrs. Norris speak about the Preparedness Day dinner to be held here February 14.

Heading the hostess committee are Mrs. Carl Nuetzel, Mrs. Frederick Whitney, Miss Ella Shaw Fisher, Mrs. Albert Staton, Mrs. Frances Foraker, Miss Grace Sterritt, and Mrs. H. A. Burgers. Assisting them are Mrs. E. H. Ewig, Mrs. Harry M. Lansdowne, Mrs. Edward McMurtry, Mrs. F. E. Naffsger, and Mrs. W. H. Perkins.

Presiding at the tea table, Mrs. Harry Revis and Mrs. A. M. Cannon will be assisted by Mrs. R. H. Merritt, Mrs. J. R. Hewitt, Mrs. Ralph Marr, Mrs. John Nelson and Mrs. Bessy French.

Greeting people at the door will be Mrs. John Chitwood with several members of both clubs assisting her.

steel pier erected at that spot. It took the Chilians 50 years to build but it is a very fine pier. That is a typical example of South American progress.

Another change, the beautiful dark senoritas that he used to see there are now all red-heads, says the doctor, that's progress, too.

He spoke in like vein on taxes and tourists.

Visiting Kiwanians were Howard Offert, of Canton, Ohio; Ted Welch of Grand Forks, North Dakota; Ruben Johnson and Fritz Wurzmann of Monterey; Fong Jing of Monterey; and Herbert Brownell of Carmel Valley.

President Tom Elston announced that next week there will be joint meeting with the Carmel Valley club at Rancho Carmelo on January 14; on January 24, a joint meeting with Pacific Grove at Forest Hill Hotel; a joint meeting with Monterey on January 30 at Casa Munras. Roundtable meeting will be held each Thursday at Pine Inn.

Two Smokes, No Fire, But The Volunteers Have To Turn Out

Where there's smoke, there should be fire. But there wasn't much for the Volunteer firemen Wednesday night. A coffee pot left on the stove in the apartment over the bakery on Dolores Street brought the volunteers out at 6:10 (just at dinner time, again. Isn't it always the way.)

They'd no sooner got home and settled to the steak than there was another alarm. This time a resident at Fourth and Mission had hung bedding to dry too near the heater with scorching results.

The call came in at 7:55 and the firehouse was full of the Ladies Auxiliary which had a meeting scheduled for 8:00 o'clock. So the girls manned the fire house and answered the phones while the volunteers were out with the trucks. All of this resulted in no damage to anything but the firemen's interrupted dinners.

Greeks Still Consider Themselves Hellenes; Love The Land, Air, Sky: Miss Arpaolou Tells University Women

The International Relations group of the American Association of University Women under the chairmanship of Mrs. Gleb Drujina had as their guests at their meeting on January third, the Evening Book Section. This combined meeting was arranged in order that everyone could have the privilege of hearing the outstanding dissertation on "Modern Greek Literature", given by Miss Ann Arpaolou, Chairman of the Greek Department of the Army Language School, Presidio of Monterey.

Miss Arpaolou feels that, "To know a country, one must know its literature." She explained that the Greeks still call themselves Hellenes and throughout the 4000 years of their existence they have chosen to identify themselves with the things they consider most valuable to them as a race; the land, the sea and the sky. During times of the ancient mythologies, men talked to the Gods on equal terms, but in the modern songs of today, they talk with the sun, the stars, the birds and the hills. Greece has always been the crossroads of the East and the West and in great respect, this has been their deepest tragedy. From Xerxes to Hitler to modern Red guerilla it has been a constant battleground of ideas, but although many invaders have come, they have contributed little to the Greek people.

There was some Middle Eastern influence on Byzantine painting, but through the years of history, certain things have changed but little since the days of Homer. They are an intelligent people, with a passionate love for freedom. Miss Arpaolou reminded her listeners that, "Intellectual self-sufficiency leads to intellectual health, but the Greeks are very much alive". Their dances, their folk-songs and their poetry are the connecting link between ancient and modern Greece. Nowhere in their literature is found the promise of heaven, hell, purgatory, reward or punishment. Their religious practices continue in the aspect of the Pagan, but under a new name. Their songs are divided into three categories: love, historical events and narrative of events in epic style. Miss Arpaolou translated songs illustrating each of these categories, and each was outstanding for its simplicity and lack of desire for material things in life.

One of the most beloved and celebrated poets of Greece was Angelos Sikelianos, who died in June of 1951. He was a handsome man with an impressive voice, resembling one of the ancient Greek Gods. He studied law, gave it up for lack of interest and turned to writing poetry. He eventually married an American girl, a graduate of Bryn Mawr, and she returned to Greece with him. There, together, they gave much effort and almost all of their personal fortunes to the revival of the Delphic Festival which they produced in 1929 and 1930. With the rise of the German occupation, Eva Sikelianos returned to New York City and eventually they were divorced, although she continued to keep in touch with him and to translate all of his poems which reached her for American publication.

In Greece, there are no Poets Laureate, as in England, but Sikelianos has been considered the leading poet of Modern Greece. A poet in the land of Hellas is held in awe and veneration, his work is cherished and preserved as a precious heritage, and not only is the poet admired for his talent, but also for his embodiment of all the Greek virtues, as well as his consistent perseverance in the ideals of heroism.

Miss Arpaolou showed the group

one of Sikelianos original manuscripts with his signature, of which she is the proud possessor. Miss Arpaolou is a most delightful speaker and her scholarly approach to her subject matter was very much admired by everyone present who had the privilege of hearing her.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hill and Mrs. Mary Osgood, who were hostesses for the meeting, served punch and cookies and a delicious Greek Honey Cake, most appropriate for refreshments, following such a hearing.

Next Monday evening at 8 p.m., The Recent Graduates group of the A.A.U.W. will meet at the home of its chairman, Mrs. Phillip Arnold, Perry Newberry St. and Stirling Way, Carmel. Members may phone 7-3472 for directions.

The annual Rummage Sale, the only fund-raising activity of the local branch during the year and for the benefit of the local scholarship fund, will be held the first

Banking that is Building California!

Emerson said "An institution is the lengthened shadow of one man"—a sentence which aptly describes California's Bank of America. For here, indeed, is an institution which carries on today in the same pioneer spirit which always motivated its founder—A. P. Giannini.

Born in California of pioneer parents, A. P. Giannini brought to banking the zeal which made possible the growth of this California-wide institution—in 48 years to become the world's largest bank—a bank founded on the concept of public service... of banking for all, large and small.

That pioneer spirit resulted in the introduction of the school savings plan which now teaches thrift to more than five hundred thousand young Californians.

That pioneer spirit has enabled this bank to lead the way in the small loan field with its many Timeplan services... and lead the way in providing loans for homes and businesses to veterans and others... to lend hundreds of millions of dollars to California farmers for the purchase of farms, livestock, seed and equipment.

That pioneer spirit has enabled Bank of America to make an all-important contribution to civic development throughout California by the purchase of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of municipal bonds for schools, hospitals, airports and other improvements.

And within the last year that pioneer spirit motivated this bank in its retention of Saturday banking service, so that its own more than four million depositors, as well as other Californians, might be served.

Here, indeed, is Banking that is Building California—building your state and your community through 529 branches in as many California neighborhoods.

JOIN THE MARCH of DIMES

Help fight Polio! The year 1951 was the second worst year for the spread of polio in the history of California . . . January is "March of Dimes" month, by official state proclamation. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis urges every American to contribute dimes and dollars to this annual campaign . . .

In four years the National Foundation has spent $79,000,000 of March of Dimes funds in direct payments for the care of polio patients.

Contributions you make also help to finance research programs. Definite progress has been achieved in the treatment of polio.

Local funds are urgently needed for the care of patients.

Along The Trails With The Rangers

POINT LOBOS RESERVE

BY KEN LEOG

Where our two predominant species of wintering warblers leave off in their search for plant enemies, the sharper-billed creepers and nuthatches take over. Whereas warblers usually forage about the leaves of trees and shrubs, the pygmy nuthatch often finds tree-infesting insects between cracks or under bark of limbs and trunks. This habit of searching beneath the bark has earned for the nuthatch the name of "the upside-down bird", for it is the only bird to be noted walking head-first down a tree trunk. It goes either up or down, whereas the brown creeper only creeps upward.

The creeps, climb, and a gang of nuthatches is so incessant that I have learned to recognize them easily, when they are about, by their conversation. Their home is the pine tree tops. High above the ground, they spend most of their time foraging, when not dropping off into space for insects on the wing, or creeping along on limb or trunk and probing their slender bills beneath the bark.

One funny habit noticed among the nuthatches, which I think interesting, is their manner of "falling" from a tree top for a distance of 50 or 60 feet, apparently after an insect. On one occasion a pair was seen falling to the ground. Both birds had outstretched wings and the weight of their bodies was causing them to pinwheel through the air like a falling, dual-winged maple seed. When I first saw it 'twas thought to be a bunch of pine needles falling, until two nuthatches pulled out of the fall, fairly at my feet. Single birds have also been noted in pinwheel falls from tree tops and I always assumed it was to catch a bit of food.

Imagine my surprise to hear one of our local authorities say that the pygmy nuthatch was probably the most abundant bird at Point Lobos. This was a few weeks after

I had arrived here. Now I can well imagine he may be correct for they can be seen in numbers at any time. It is here winter and summer and nests in dead snags; the nest being constructed in a hole which the bird excavates.

Two other species of nuthatches, both a bit larger, are here as transients or in small numbers. These are the red-breasted and the white-breasted. Our pygmy is a short-tailed, stubby-looking, blue-grey bird. The top of its head is grayish-brown, a blackish line from the bill extends through the eye, and the bill and feet are black. The throat is white.

At this time nuthatches are extremely gregarious and it is interesting to note that when one leaves a certain tree, the entire crowd follows. They are quite often seen in company with other small birds, as mentioned previously. Since they prefer tall pine tree tops, they are mostly a bird of the mountains, but fondness for the Monterey Pine which offers the habitat they prefer, has made them a part of Point Lobos' bird life.

Senator Nixon To Be Speaker At Co. G.O.P. Dinner

Senator Richard M. Nixon will be the principal speaker at the Monterey County Republicans' Preparedness Dinner, to be held in Exposition Hall, at the County Fair grounds on February 14. A Hollywood star and several state and national political personalities will also be included in the program.

Chairman of the Monterey County Republican Central Committee, S. V. Christierson, announced that the dinner will be held at the home of Alan G. Pattee, Corral de Tierra Road, and Mrs. Nelson Miles Leoni of Carmel Valley as co-chairmen of the dinner committee, with membership including Peter Dyer and Guy Curtis, Monterey; Niles Pease, Pacific Grove; F. E. Dayton, Homer Hayward, Earle Kaplansky and Harry E. Crean, Salinas; Loren H. Burns, King City; and L. W. Wiley, Soledad.

Pattee was manager of Congressman Nixon's 1948 campaign in Monterey County for the United States Senate. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the 7th Agricultural Fair District and the California Rodeo Association. Mrs. Leoni is the only woman member of the Monterey County Republican Central Committee.

Harry E. Crean, Finance Chairman of the Monterey County Republican Central Committee, pointed out that proceeds from this dinner will provide adequate funds for support of all Republican candidates in 1952, providing 400 or 500 citizens respond to the financial appeal.

"We have an opportunity to reelect our senior Senator, William F. Knowland, and possibly the other Republican candidates in the primaries, thus saving the cost of their running in the November general election, if we secure widest possible support at our Preparedness Dinner," Christierson stated.

Construction Starts On New Restaurant

The new Peninsula restaurant, Spindrift, is now being constructed on Fremont extension at Salinas highway intersection. Rustic, native materials in intrinsic Monterey Peninsula style will be employed in the building, which will occupy 4,500 square feet of a four-acre tract covered with live oaks, according to Caroline Vogel and Virginia Hill, local owner of the new enterprise, who with their cousin, Jack Young, will be in charge. Carmel stone for the exterior, redwood and large glass wall areas are some of the features of the building, designed by John Konigshofer and engineered by Edward Campbell.

Carolyn Vogel and Virginia Hill formerly owned the Blue Bird in Carmel and the Poppy in Monterey. Jack Young, a wine expert, is from the East, where his family has operated restaurants for three generations.

gone up $129,000, and the number of homes financed during 1951 was 89.

Mr. Segal said that families who want to build the more expensive houses may face some delay or postponement this year, because of stringencies in critical materials, but that 1952 should see substantial amount of modest home building.

Lottie S. Ogden

Mrs. E. Martin Ogden, mother of Muri Ogden, Carmel portrait photographer, died on January 8 in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. She would have been 83 years old on January 18.

Mrs. Ogden made her home here from 1937 until 1949. She traveled 7000 miles a year by automobile after that, revisiting Carmel each year after her departure. She and her daughter, Miss Vivian Ogden, were preparing to return again when Mrs. Ogden died.

In addition to her son Muri and her daughter Vivian, she is survived by four daughters, Mrs. E. Rice of Raleigh, N. C., Mrs. George Brown, Mrs. Harold Dillert, and Mrs. Jack Guinan, all of Hartford, Conn., and three sons, also of Hartford, Edmund, Franklin and Quentin Ogden. She also is survived by eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

The former Lottie Stacy was born in 1869 in Holyoke, Massachusetts. Her husband died in Carmel five years ago.

Funeral arrangements are being made by the Dorney Funeral Home in Monterey. Date of services will be announced later, members of the family said.

Jackson And Doud Buy Walker Property

Corum Jackson and Jimmy Doud now own the Walker tract, which they bought from Mrs. Alma Walker last week. They also purchased other holdings from Mrs. Walker, including the Mission tract, Monte Regio in Monterey, and odd job lots of lots in both Carmel and Monterey.

This means that homesites will be available in the Mission and Walker tracts, which were on the market only part of the time during Mrs. Walker's ownership.

And the property started selling "before the ink was dry on the papers," according to Jackson, who said that a $30,000 sale went through before he could put the property on the market.

Art of Painting . . .

By PATRICIA CUNNINGHAM

Installment 8

Pre-Renaissance influences in our modern art styles have been discussed so far in reference to Cezanne and Braque.

The evolution of Cezanne is a fine illustration of the difference between the Expressionist or Romantic and the classic attitude. As a young man of 24 he went to Paris from his home town Aix in the south of France and set out to study art. His father was well off, so Cezanne was given a thorough education in the "classics", meaning the literature of the Greeks and Romans. Thus it was instilled in him from the beginning that subjective memory association was the rule of life, and natural and sensual phenomena incidental to the a priori idea in the mind of man, that directed his reaction to them. In other words, Cezanne was brought up to be a romantic—to feel that ideas about life are superior to life itself. This is, in art, the process of literature.

So all young Paul Cezanne thought of was the story of things—dreamed up in one's mind on the emotional jag we call day-dreams. He had plenty of bad examples and certainly followed them—Rubens, Delacroix, the later Renaissance artists, all allegorical, all dreamed up in the mind with no reference or care for real people or real life. Big roly-poly blousy nudes in melodramatic situations. His early things were really awful.

This went on for about ten years. All this time he thought he was a radical young modern of the avant garde because he rebelled against the influence of Ingres and clung rather to Courbet.

It was then his good fortune to spend two summers with the great and elegant Pizzarro, who opened his eyes to the world of nature. For the first time he saw light as the nature of color, and the revelation of the atmosphere that we live and breathe in. Something clicked. From then on he made history. He went beyond the discovery of color as light. He also came to see how color constructs space and form as well as revealing it.

So he became a recluse and painted real life experience instead of empty allegories.

How like the development of a person from infancy to manhood is Cezanne's development as an artist. First the self-centered egotist interested only in his slant on things for his personal sensual gratification. Then the realization of the objective world and the knowing that we are not anything at all in ourselves, that there must be ourselves plus environment to result in really being. Then he had to make the great struggle to drop the blinders of prejudice and pre-conceived ideas and really see environment. Then the effort to achieve the wisdom to understand it and our relation to it.

The farther he progressed, the more he got away from the anchor of self. And in losing himself, Cezanne gained the whole world. How this harks back to the biblical admonition that you must lose your soul in order to find it.

Thus Cezanne became a classicist in that he translated the perceptual stimuli of natural phenomena into the perceptual stimuli possible to produce on a flat surface to give the equivalent stimulus—reflex-response pattern of the natural experience. In other words, Cezanne discovered form in the sense of its being the organization of incidents into an integrated pattern determined by the materials of the organization. In a painting these materials are the surface, the pigments, the colors, lines and shapes. And this integrated pattern, this unity must go from perception to conception. The opposite sequence is romanticism, the aim of which is vicarious emotional experience.

In "classic" art the formal structure is so potent, so congruous, and thus beautiful, that it

STORM WARNING

*A prayer for little ships
Caught outward by the gale
Beyond the harbour guide—
Lashed by the seething tide
Let not their courage fail.*

*Let them submit, and ride
The steep waves up and down,
Bend to the wild white blow—
Beaten to strength they go,
Under the wind's dark frown.*

*Out on the pouring seas
Where fury and rage pursue,
Give them to yield with pride—
Danger is self-defied!
Peril will bear them through!*

—ANON

CATCHING AN EARLY TRAIN

*In the dark morning, star-pricked and street-lighted,
The circle of the bay was a string of jewels
    looped around the water,
Clasped at the throat of sleeping Monterey—
Through the early mist the dawn came soon,
With trails of rose-gold fringing the lower edges. . . .
Through the empty rifts
Shone panes of coral cloud against the blue
Mirrored in the rain-pools of the highway. . . .
Here and there the gentle hollows of the land
Cupped the low mist left over from the night. . . .
The tree-tops stood like islands—
The plowed fields lay darkly violet, dreaming Spring.*

—JOHN STONE

TOUCH THE DUST

*Mortality, stretch out your hand
And touch the dust! The light cuts through
Your puzzled bones that sicken beyond
The power of willing Spring to renew;*

*Undaunted bones, describe this gesture—
(Plants, though impermanent,
Mark out their orbits); touch this posture
To whose curves you will be bent.*

—MARGARET FRASER

immediately projects the observer out of himself and removes him from subjective feeling. As soon as the individual is freed of this subjective reaction to experience, his realization of the qualities of experience increases in the same ratio that one unit compares to the universe. In other words, release from emotion at the same time releases the understanding and the feeling for experience to infinite capacity. So—art purged of the elements that cause subjective emotional stimulation in the observer, far from being cold or cerebral, possesses the greatest effulgence of pure feeling that can be. Emotion applies only to the individual's small needs and demands. The understanding of emotion is to embrace sympathetically the whole world.

Great art must help man to transcend his nominal existence lashed by time and space, the prison of his subjective physical needs, and bring him into the transcendental realms of objective intuitive being, where he is at last free of the shackles of subjective responsibility that takes the form of emotion, or physical stimulus to action, and implies the temporal fate of all living things.

Cezanne arrived at his classicism by single-minded and single-hearted effort. The early Christians and Byzantines arrived at their classicism through the mass stimulation of a mystic ideal. So Cezanne and these pre-Renaissance schools are remarkably alike in formal manipulation and authority of expressive mood. However, where the pre-Renaissance illuminators and muralists use symbolic color, Cezanne uses atmospheric color, or color as light-revealing form. What we now call plastic color. The pre-Renaissance color was sufficient to their aim—to express man in terms of his relation to the mystic nature of God. But Cezanne worshipped nature itself and so he had to find a color system which would express the light and atmosphere of nature. Also, he emphasized strongly the tactile quality of surfaces as revealed by color, since the activation of the sense of touch—by hand or by interpretation through the eye—heightens the perceptual reality of the object.

Cezanne never was satisfied with what he did—no one knows how many masterpieces he destroyed because he felt they fell short of the hidden truth he searched for so patiently and persistently. And Cezanne's dissatisfaction had an understandable basis. He never did go beyond a certain point, which could have been the next step for him. This point is the releasing of the picture space design from being parallel to the picture plane. It is odd that the solution never occurred to Cezanne. He had plastic color, he could have done it. But tradition evidently held him back. Like the pre-Renaissance muralists Cezanne's space design maintained the architectural character of the picture plane. It need not have. The muralists had to make their design subordinate to the structure of the wall surface in order not to weaken the structural integrity of the edifice. An easel painting has no structural integrity—only a spacial integrity. As soon as a theatre of action is postulated as a unit because of the manipulation of the spacial design—it is perfectly possible and entirely legitimate to go inward at an angle to the picture plane rather than to progress backward in stages parallel to the picture plane. Cezanne goes inward diagonally only in subject-matter presentation—never spacial movement. He must have wanted to and surely would have if he had had more time.

It is so interesting to see the efforts of the Spaniard Juan Gris to do this very thing. He formulated the intention but never succeeded because he did not have plastic color. He had only symbolic color, like the pre-Renaissance, and thus could not postulate an atmosphere to move freely. Why did he not get it from Cezanne? Might as well ask why all formal integrity was lacking in the decadent Renaissance when they had all the great masterpieces of the past from which to glean the principles.

Red Cross Volunteers Skimp Time From Their Own Christmas To Make A Happy Holiday For Ord Hospital

Activities during the holidays at Carmel Red Cross headquarters maintained the usual tempo, with added hours of work required of those volunteers in charge of entertainment and festivities for service men hospitalized at Fort Ord hospital.

Perhaps the busiest person was Mrs. Rush R. Wallace, chairman of the Fort Ord Council and chairman of entertainment and instruction for the Carmel chapter, who supervised the collection of gifts and packages for distribution to men in the hospital wards and arranged for a full program of holiday entertainment.

Carmel residents generously made donations of cakes, candies, nuts and apples, and also small Christmas trees and ornaments. These were distributed through the wards by Gray Ladies from Red Cross chapters represented in the Fort Ord Council, Mrs. Isabelle Terhune supervising the Carmel branch.

Entertainment in the hospital, arranged for by the Red Cross, included carols sung by choruses from Peninsula schools and by the Carmel High School Glee Club. A Christmas party was on the program for December 19, under the supervision of the Gray Ladies, and Miss Hazel McClellan and her group of entertainers had charge of the Christmas Eve festivities. On Sunday, December 30, the wards were treated to a puppet show by Mrs. Lee Scott, from the Carmel Red Cross, with Mrs. E. M. Achroyd, Gray Lady, assisting. Red Cross directors at Fort Ord hospital reported that it was one of the happiest holidays seasons experienced by hospitalized service men.

During the week of December 13 to 20, drives through the 17-Mile Drive and through Peninsula streets for a view of Christmas decorations were arranged for the service

Dody's One Man Show Makes Hit In Santa Barbara

Dody Warren's one-man show of photographic prints, currently on exhibition at the Santa Barbara Museum of Art has been enthusiastically received by press and gallery visitors.

"Rarely has there been a more interesting or more excellent showing of photographs at the Santa Barbara Museum of Art than by Dody of Carmel, now on exhibit men from the hospital by the Carmel Red Cross chapter. The newly acquired station-wagon was put into use for the drives and for the distribution of gifts to the men. Members of the recently organized motor corps, with Mrs. Fred Godwin and Mrs. Ray Draper as co-chairmen, volunteered as drivers. During each trip one Gray Lady accompanied the patients. Volunteering were Mrs. E. M. Achroyd, Mrs. Edwin J. Fritchie, and Mrs. Isabelle Terhune, chairman of Carmel Red Cross Gray Ladies.

Junior Red Cross members were not idle during their Christmas vacation. Under the supervision of Mrs. Wm. Arley Smith, chairman, Junior Red Cross volunteers distributed to Carmel merchants and office posters depicting the need for blood donors.

Pressing holiday activities did not interfere with duties required of staff aides and nurses' aides at the USO blood bank on December 27. Mrs. James Doud, chairman of staff aides, and Mrs. Kent Parrot, chairman of nurses' aides for the Carmel chapter, reported that the blood bank was fully staffed. Miss Helen Heavey, in charge of the blood program for the Carmel chapter, reported that 114 pints of blood were procured, a fairly good quota for the busiest season of the year.

Production room workers and staff aides also worked diligently prior to Christmas, packing Christmas baskets for distribution to service men's families.

All branches of volunteer service are being built up by Mrs. Frank Moller, chairman of service groups, for a greater program of service during the coming year.

A new plan for civil defense is being worked out in detail by Capt. H. M. Gleason and his committee. Staff aides will be working in the civil defense office on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week from 10 a.m. to 12 noon. Mrs. James Doud will arrange schedules.

there," says the Santa Barbara News Press.

"Through her small contact prints Dody reveals a great deal of poetic artistry and a technical perfection which combine to make her studies of natural objects, strange patterns and varied textures most fascinating.

"Dody is a friend and disciple of the great Carmel photographer, Edward Weston, and many of her artistic conceptions and special techniques can be traced readily to that master. Yet she has brought enough of her individual creativeness to her photographs to distinguish them markedly from Weston's—for the most part.

"These small prints make an unusual and striking display and those of us who are not photographers may grumble a bit about the minuteness of them. Nevertheless, these contact prints offer important textural and light values which would be lost through enlargement and for as fine an artist and craftsman as Dody one might strain one's eyes a little to better appreciate their unusual beauty. The exhibit will be up through this month and should be of interest to all gallery visitors."

BACK FROM SUN VALLEY

The Fred Diefendorfs and Roger are home after a nine-day jaunt to Sun Valley, full of enthusiasm for a place where you can "swim in hot water while snow flakes are falling on your head." They caught a glimpse of Howard Timbers and Carol as they whizzed by on a sled. They report antelope hanging around the hotel, so tame that kids could play with them, and all together having a wonderful holiday.

HI CHATTER

By Joan Kempen

The holidays are over and the students are once again into the old swing. The talk has now switched from the Rose Bowl and parties to the most dreaded week of all—Semester Final Week. For the seniors, this year semester finals are more important than ever before. Many college and university acceptances hinge on next week.

With the semester rapidly drawing to a close another big issue is at hand; new student body officers for the coming semester. The students that have been seen frequently running around putting up posters for the various offices that they would like are: Sue McCloud, Skipper Lloyd, and Kurt von Meier, president; Lanny Doolittle, vice-president; Paula Roloff, and Sandra Solomon, secretary; Myron Branson, Don Canham, and Said Meheen, commissioner of boys' athletics; Allene Petty, commissioner of girls' athletics; Kathleen Whittaker, Pat Chedester, and Karen von Meier, commissioner of social affairs, and Joni Mackenzie, commissioner of publicity.

At noon on Monday, January 7, the Rally Club held a very important meeting. Lagging spirit and attendances at the games were the two topics of prime importance. Also under consideration are the two proposed ways of re-organizing the club.

The Junior Statesmen held a short meeting Tuesday evening, January 8, in the school library. Discussion of proposed events to be sponsored by the organization was the main business of the evening.

ning. Early in February the competitive examinations for scholarships to Redlands University will be given. All students who wish to take the test should submit their name to Miss Wright immediately.

Former Islanders Gather

Gathering at Christmastime at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Budd were a group of people who had all lived previously in Honolulu. They were Mr. and Mrs. Budd, Mrs. Carol Howard, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Henning of San Jose, mother and father of Mrs. Budd and Mrs. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Budd, Mr. Paul Budd's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilson and the two daughters of the Paul Budds, Carla and Nicki. Hawaiian songs as well as seasonal carols were enjoyed by the merry-makers, and Christmas dinner was served.

Manda Short Has Late Birthday

Manda Short, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Short of Monterey, had flu on her third birthday, December 13, so she had her party a little late. Ice cream and cake marked the event on Monday, January 7. Celebrating with Manda were David, Seth and Tony Bates, Debby and Robin Smith, Penny Smith, Mark Weston, and the hostess' little sister, Lenci.

Serra Mothers' Club

In spite of the rugged weather a representative group of members of the Mothers' Club met Thursday in Crespi Hall at the Mission. Mrs. Shelburn Robison presided in spite of a heavy cold, assisted by Mrs. Paul Masuen, secretary and Mrs. Wm. McCormick, pinch-hitting for Mrs. Frank Andrews as treasurer.

Plans were set up for a celebration in honor of the tenth anniversary of the Club with Mrs. West Whittaker as chairman of a committee including Mrs. Annalee Jepson, Mrs. Thomas Branson and Mrs. Frederick Cloud. A luncheon will be held honoring the presidents, past and present, probably at the Pine Inn.

Monsignor M. D. O'Connell has delegated General George D. Wahl and Mrs. George Macbeth to set up drama and choral groups for the Mission, using the Newman Club as a nucleus. There is much talent among the younger set which Monsignor is anxious to put into cultural activity. The first meeting will be Thursday, January 10.

The library project is making headway but contributions of books are requested. Sister Superior has a list of desirable books which may be had upon request.

American Legion Auxiliary

In a candlelight ceremony at Legion Hall last Tuesday evening, five new members of Carmel Unit No. 512 of the American Legion Auxiliary were initiated. They are Mrs. Chester R. Curry, Mrs. William O. Walker, Mrs. Charles P. McCuen, Mrs. Harriet Hebard and Mrs. Frances H. Smithers.

The next meeting of District 28 of the Legion and Auxiliary will be held in Carmel on January 27. Mrs. Norman Winslow, president of the Auxiliary, announced. While the Legion meets at Legion Hall, Auxiliary members from the district will meet at Sunset School cafeteria at 10:00 o'clock in the morning. At noon they will join the Legion at a midday dinner at Legion Hall.

After the dinner, both groups will return to their business meetings, which continue until 4:00 in the afternoon.

Abernethys' Guest Leaves

Mrs. Charles S. Fraser has returned to San Jose after visiting for two weeks with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Abernethy.

Viola Troseth Married

Of interest to her many Carmel friends is the news of the marriage of Viola Troseth, formerly a head nurse at Peninsula Community Hospital, to Joseph Quinn, of New York City. The ceremony took place just before Christmas in New York City, where Viola is with Rockefeller Foundation Hospital and Joseph is studying police methods and criminology. Viola left Community Hospital in '48 but returned to serve as superintendent of nurses when Betty Kynaston was in England and during the previous summer.

Audubon Field Trip

The Santa Clara Valley Audubon Society will join the Monterey Peninsula group on their first January field trip to Moss Landing Saturday. Meeting place is the construction road north of the cement bridge over Elkhorn Slough at 8:30 in the morning. Local members are keeping their fingers crossed in the hope that the whistling swans will be around so they can show them off to the visitors from the north. Members are reminded to bring their lunches, and a friend if they wish. Dr. R. P. Parsons, president, will arrange transportation for those who do not have it, if they will phone 7-4364.

Another field trip is scheduled for January 20. This is to be at the Hatton Ranch in Carmel Valley, with the meeting place at Highway No. 1 intersection with the Carmel Valley road at 8:30 in the morning. Members who would like to extend the expedition into afternoon birding at the Carmel River mouth are advised to bring a lunch.

Feature of the regular business meeting, which will be held January 18, room 11, Sunset School at 8:00 o'clock will be a showing of color slides by Howard Feder of the Hopkins Marine Station, who will speak on his Alaskan expedition.

Lynches Here

Kenneth and Maggie Lynch are again down from San Francisco, inhabiting their summer house at Monte Verde and Santa Lucia.

Lynches Week-end in Carmel

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lynch of San Francisco, while spending the past week end in their Carmel home, were the Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Webster Street. Other guests were Miss Dorothy Swanson and Mr. Bert Taylor, both of Carmel.

Piano Concert For USO

Mrs. Fritz Wurzmahn of Carmel will give a piano recital for servicemen at the Monterey U.S.O. at 3:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon, January 20. The popular musician will use the same program of selections with which she has entertained friends at her home at a number of small, informal Sunday afternoon concerts.

AAUW Speaker

Mrs. Forster Rand Smith of Palo Alto will be the guest speaker at the January luncheon meeting of the American Association of University Women on Saturday, January 19 at 12:30 p.m. at the Casa Munras in Monterey.

Mrs. Smith is the South-Pacific Regional Vice President of the National A.A.U.W. Board of Directors.

Reservations for this meeting must be in by January 14 and may be obtained by calling Mrs. Lloyd Miller, Hospitality Chairman, at 7-7709, or either Mrs. W. B. Hanum 5-6572 or Miss Edith Jamieson, 7-6267.

Recall Oldtime Quincy

While visiting at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Howard Clark, Mr. Charles Keyes had an interesting visit with Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Carter of Carmel, who are natives of Quincy, Illinois, the town in which Mr. Keyes spent his boyhood, before moving to Minneapolis, where he became a lawyer. Mr. Carter's father was Judge Carter, a prominent figure of Quincy, and Mrs. Carter's father was the town's physician, Dr. Montgomery, who at the age of 92 is still living there. Mrs. Montgomery's two sisters, Miss Elinor and Miss Elizabeth Montgomery, also born in Quincy, are at present on a three-months' tour in Mexico with Mrs. May Robson.

Mrs. Comstock In Sacramento

Mrs. Hugh Comstock is visiting this week end with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bishop in Sacramento.

County Music Teachers Meet

At their first meeting of the New Year, members of the Monterey County Music Teachers Association discussed plans for a membership concert, to be their next meeting. Other events of the January 7 meeting, a luncheon at Cerritos, were the welcoming of a new member and two guests, and the reading of a paper by Mr. Edward C. Hopkins on the California Plan, voluntary plan which seeks to raise the standards of private studio teaching in the state. Through its own members in 22 branches of the California State Music Teachers Association, the group is endeavoring to establish standards of achievement in private music teaching, since there is no state law requiring teaching credentials for the private music teacher.

Mr. Sergey Panin was welcomed into the organization, and present as guests were Mr. Leonard Abinante and Mr. Harold Ralph.

Crafts Guild Meeting

The Carmel Crafts Guild will have a general membership meeting tonight at Sunset School, room 11, at 8:00 o'clock. Members will really knuckle down to business with a discussion of cost accounting and taxes as it relates to craftsmen.

Joining Youngest Set

Pauline Louise was greeted by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald J. Artellan, and small brother, Benny, on December 31. Mr. and Mrs. William J. Wishart are the parents of a daughter, Holly Joy, born on Christmas Day. On December 27, Catherine Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl K. Frisbie arrived. Mr. and Mrs. Graham Brotherson are the parents of Roger Graham, born January 1, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lockwood of a son born January 6. All babies were born at Peninsula Community Hospital.

SPCA Elects Officers

Two new directors, Mrs. Aurel Terven of Salinas and Mr. Lee Crowe, were elected at a general meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals held Tuesday evening. Re-elected were Colonel Shelburn Robison and King Maderos. Outgoing members were Dr. D. T. MacDougall and Mrs. Christine Raynsford, who received a vote of thanks from the members for her long years of service to the society and expression of regret that she felt unable to continue in office.

Mr. Noel Sullivan, president of the district SPCA, in welcoming Mrs. Terven's group, the Salinas Valley Pets organization, to membership in the SPCA, stressed the need for unity among groups working for animal welfare, and complimented the Salinas group on setting a fine example.

Review Of Yehudi Menuhin Concert

By EBEN WHITTLESEY

A capacity crowd of regular Music Society subscribers and as many others as could be accommodated in extra chairs, had the thrill they had justly anticipated last Friday when Yehudi Menuhin played in Carmel. He was accompanied by Adolph Baller, no stranger to the local audience. Mr. Baller's stature as an artist in his own right, and his difficulty in subduing the tone of our concert grand, gave his piano parts a considerable prominence, which, in view of their high quality, could not be resented.

Beethoven's Kreutzer Sonata, which opened the program, brought out in the first movement Mr. Menuhin's speed, accuracy, crisp attack and fine tone quality. The important piano part was handled with great skill, fine quality and reasonable restraint. The second movement was lyric and smooth, while in the third the violinist achieved brilliant speed and lightness of touch, while at no time sacrificing accuracy of detail.

The program was replete with old favorites that are a little too familiar. Still, it is always a privilege to hear them played by a consummate artist such as this. Menuhin has perhaps never overcome the weakness for music that over-emphasizes technical brilliance, which probably results from having been an outstanding child prodigy of the violin. His resources of lyric tone quality and sensitive interpretation make one wish that he would play more music of an essentially poetic character, such as the deeply moving Hebrew themes developed by Bloch.

Bach's Sonata No. 3 in C major for violin alone was not the most successful offering of the evening. It is involved, extremely difficult to execute. It was not played in a very intelligible manner, and the artist seemed to emphasize, rather than to smooth out the involved passages. One had the feeling at times that Mr. Menuhin was trying to do too many things at once and should have had the help of an orchestra to carry some of the parts. The last movement, however, was sparkling and expressive, and there was depth and great expressiveness in the interpretation.

After the intermission, Mendelssohn's good old E minor concerto carried us back to our first album of victrola records. The first movement is meant to be fast and dazzling, but Mr. Menuhin started with such a head of steam he never quite got down to a reasonable pace until the next movement. This he played with lyric eloquence, but avoided excessive sentiment. The last movement had all the care-free brilliance one could ask, with remarkable flexibility and delicacy.

For the rest, I could have listened to the Ravel Habanera three times and gone without Locatelli's Labyrinth, he didn't have to prove he could play all the notes, and the Dvorak-Kreisler Caprice. Then there was the Wienawski Scherzo-Tarantelle, a showpiece almost in the class of Flight of the Bumblebee. I have not heard the Ravel played with more finesse and winning charm.

For encores we heard the almost inevitable Girl with the Flaxen Hair and the equally trite, though charming Kreisler Caprice Viennois. Anything I may have said to the contrary notwithstanding, it was a thrilling and memorable evening.

There was no living with Abbott Silva this week, he was that cocky. For months and months while he was convalescing his doctor had him grounded. He couldn't drive his car, and he couldn't even walk, unless he went the long way around and avoided the hills. Then for a Christmas present "Doc" told him he could drive again. ## To See Brothers On Stage

Miss Gay Masten, daughter of Mrs. Chester Hare, returned last week to Dominican College in San Rafael after a holiday at home. She plans to come back to Carmel again tomorrow, however, to see her brother, Ricky Masten, and her step-brother, Jimmy Hare, in a week-end performance of The Hasty Heart.

Except for a broken rib, complicated by a cold, Mrs. Hare reports recovery from the New Year's automobile accident in which she and Dr. Hare both were injured.

Leprechauns For Kappas

Mrs. Eulalia Stauffer will show her hobby collection of hand-modeled leprechauns to Carmel Area Club of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority on Saturday, January 19, at the group's quarterly tea.

Members will meet at the home of Mrs. Murray Mathews in Monterey. Assisting as hostesses will be Mrs. Frances Hawley of Pebble Beach, Mrs. C. A. Nedderson of Carmel, and Mrs. Stanley S. Simonson of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

Mrs. Stauffer will show the Kappa alumnae more than 500 of the little Irish fairies, for which she models clay heads, and whose flexible bodies she clothes.

Cross-Country and Europe

Mrs. Vera Peck Millis of Carmel Valley plans to leave January 23 for visits with her children on the East Coast before she sails for Europe on March 7. Her son-in-law and youngest daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Leavenworth, both now studying for their master's degrees at the University of Colorado, at Boulder, will accompany Mrs. Millis to Europe. While they study in England, Mrs. Millis plans to tour the Scandinavian countries until next fall.

First stop for the Carmel Valleyite will be with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Borstelmann, and their new daughter, Nancy, in Chapel Hill, N. C. From there Mrs. Millis will go to Washington, D. C., where her son William and his family have been living since last fall.

House guests this week end to bid her bon voyage will be Mrs. Millis' brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Peck from Los Angeles.

Tyson, Mrs. C. W. G. Whiting, Mrs. George Yates.

New officers and directors will be installed at a meeting scheduled for February 1. At that time, the retiring chairman, Mrs. R. L. Bower of Pebble Beach, will present the incoming officers.

Speaker for the election meeting was Miss B. Olive Hart, executive director of the newly organized Visiting Nurse Association. Mrs. James Tyson announced that paintings and ceramics from the Arts and Crafts group at the Seaside-Del Monte Youth Center were on display at the Virginia Blair Studios on the Wharf. Mrs. Helen Park Clark reported that December had been a successful month for the AWVS-sponsored Thrift Shop. The Shop reopened January 8 after a pre-Christmas holiday.

The charming replica of a Scandinavian cottage proves again that good things come in small packages! You'll agree when you see the lovely Danish silver at the WEE BIT OF SCANDINAVIA on Sixth Street. Fine Talemark plated flatware copies the carved wooden handles of olden-day cutlery, yet is timelessly modern. A

Two Doctors And A Colonel Square Off On Socialized Medicine All Because Of "Ferocious Dane" Film

The slogan, "World Affairs are your affairs" was given reality in Col. Worthington Hollyday's Scandinavian Study Group Monday evening as the subject of public health progressed to a lively discussion of socialized medicine.

The session began with the showing of a Filmstaten-Denmark Motion Picture of health measures as practiced in Denmark.

Dr. Valdemar Hempel, formerly of Copenhagen, an instructor at Army Language School, told of some Danish health, vacation and old age pension practices which he said led the world in completeness.

Carmel's Dr. Friedy Heisler, who though not having visited Denmark, was certain of the value of its health benefits. She deplored the general hostility of her own medical profession to all socialized medicine practices, so-called.

After expatiating on the fearful inadequacy of medical care for middle income groups in America, Dr. Heisler thought communities should set up groups of civic minded citizens with object to face up to this problem of medical inadequacy and work out appropriate solutions on community level. She pointed out that clinical practice for the destitute was often on as high a professional standard as that for the well-to-do. In general, to the middle classes "a medical emergency is all too often a financial tragedy." She thought that somehow a corrective of these conditions could be had without too great an addition to the tax burden, and she could not understand the deep rooted prejudice against social health measures.

Dr. Heisler was followed by Attorney Francis Heisler who told of the successful experience of St. Louis Teamsters Union in its initiation of its "Labor Health Insurance Inc." institution. This institution, started in 1941 is open for membership to any member of the union regardless of current physical condition. It furnishes comprehensive medical care to its membership for 3 1/2% of monthly wage per member, or 5% per member for member and family.

Attorney Heisler portrayed the enterprise as wholly successful in spite of one-time organized medical profession opposition—that the something-for-nothing period of running to the clinic for imaginary ills had long since vanished—that today the management has to urge its healthy members to come in for check up rather than try to stall them away. It is altogether a shining example of a "working socialized medicine" practice in this country.

It was then pointed out from the floor that: as to the not-understood opposition to socialized medicine, true Americans, conscious of their heritage, have a deep-rooted aversion to things compulsory, their nation having been born as an expression of antagonism to the compulsory. They are thus congenitally reluctant to impose any compulsory measures upon themselves. Properly and honestly, Socialized Medicine is a compulsory measure. If not compulsory, it is not "Socialized". Socialized medicine is that which makes mandatory that the provident and health caring support the improvident and health wasteful by some form of taxation, direct or indirect.

That the Labor Health Institute of St. Louis depicted as an example of "socialized medicine" by Attorney Heisler is not socialized medicine at all since it is on a purely voluntary basis and controlled by a voluntary but solvent group of wage earners and it is undoubtedly exclusive of the mendicant group.

That advocates of group health plans would do well to distinguish six-piece place setting is only $9.10. WEE BIT OF SCANDINAVIA has sterling, too, in separate pieces of delicate Viking Rose. And for your suit or dark dress, you'll love a sterling "bride's pin," exquisitely crafted in Norway.

between socialized medicine, compulsory by law and politically controlled, and voluntary cooperative health measure groups of governmentally-independent status.

audience that her plea had been for "community action", not national control, that her real concern was more for citizen indifference to the health problem than for any other immediate thing.

The floor responded with the assertion that "citizen indifference to the obligations of citizenship, whatever they may be, spells democratic disaster, period."

George O. Torres

The death of George O. (Boots) Torres, member of a pioneer Monterey family, occurred last Monday in Fort Miley Veterans Hospital. Mr. Torres had been ill for almost a year.

He was born April 8, 1906, of the de la Torre family of Monterey. An ancestor, Captain Gabriel de la Torre, built the family home, the de la Torre adobe (now Poor Scholar Book Shop) in Monterey in 1841. This was later the residence of Alcade Jose Joaquin de la Torre.

As "Boots" Torres, he grew up in Monterey, attending the local schools, where he was known for his athletic abilities. He graduated from Monterey High School and attended St. Regis College in Denver, Colorado, where he was a member of Alpha Chi Kappa Fraternity.

After a period of employment at Monterey Post Office, he enlisted in the Army Air Force during World War II. After three years of service, he was discharged with the rating of sergeant in 1946, returning to the post office, where he was employed until his last illness.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Beatrice Torres of Carmel; his father, Joseph O. Torres of Monterey; a sister, Mrs. Mellanie C. Cipperly of Tracy; a niece, Mrs. Tony Vyeda of Watsonville; and a nephew, Charles Cipperly of Tracy.

A requiem mass was held at 9:00 o'clock this morning at Carmel Mission, preceded by services at 8:30 in Dorney and Farlinger chapel. Burial with military honors will take place in Golden Gate National Cemetery, San Bruno, at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon.

On Thursday evening ritualistic services by Monterey Elks, No. 1285 and by American Legion Post 41 were conducted, and Holy Rosary was offered at 8:00 o'clock.

Foundation Has Plan To Help Senior Citizens

(Continued from Page One) of the program, a board of appeals and a board of financial and legal assistance and advice. Headquarters will be established with telephone and secretarial accommodations for transaction of Foundation business.

Full details concerning this "adventure in neighborliness" are contained in a brochure which has been distributed widely. It may be obtained by a postcard request addressed to The Carmel Foundation, Box 3424 Carmel. Whether or not the proposed plan can be put into effect will depend upon the response to the request for contributions by the citizens of Carmel and others who believe that old persons should have a guarantee of the right to live with dignity, security, comfort and satisfaction.

Doings At City Council Meeting...

Councilman Gene Ricketts said, "It isn't up to us to say what to do about Monterey and Pacific Grove's water supply, if we could."

Councilman Andrew Martin concurred that it was not a local matter but one for the entire area to decide.

Mayor Knight said he'd made a study of the question and had received different opinions from various cities he'd investigated. In Sacramento the P.T.A. had disapproved fluoridation because of the dangers of getting too much in the water supply. In Portland they had decided there might be benefits to the children but it would be detrimental to people who have heart disease, and the city engineer of San Bruno had recommended against fluoridation.

"Carmel is always expected to be the guinea pig," he concluded.

Mrs. Smith, who had mailed the council the bulletin from the county health department, spoke from the floor, saying that the P.T.A. hoped the council would set up a committee to study the fluoridation.

Mrs. William H. McCabe rose up to say that one of the statements in the county health department's bulletin was in error. You do not inject fluorine into the water supply in the same manner as chlorine is added, as a gas, but as a salt. She concluded, "In helping children, you are endangering the life of adult people. Lots of people here live on salt-free diets. And it has not been proved that you will help the children."

Mr. and Mrs. C. Arthur Sargent, who have a health food store here, spoke of the number of people who patronize their place of business seeking on doctor's prescription, salt-free foods. "Some of them can't eat even celery or soy beans because of the sodium in them."

Mrs. C. A. Hathaway spoke of visits to cities where fluoridation was in practice, where she had gathered that the citizens had not been satisfied with the experiment.

Mrs. Richard Lofton, Mrs. Francis Lloyd and Mrs. Theodore Martens spoke in favor of fluoridation. Mrs. Lofton urging that an opinion poll be taken by the council to decide what the majority of people want in Carmel.

In referring to a statement made by a councilman that the state would not absolve city government from responsibility in case of injury resulting from fluoridation, Mrs. Lloyd asked why then had other cities assumed this responsibility.

Mrs. Martens pointed to medical and dental endorsement of fluoridation and said she had had a dentist give treatments for her children's teeth (at a cost of about $60.00) and thought they had helped prevent cavities.

Mayor Knight asked how many present who wanted fluoridation for their children had ever bought any fluoride at a drug store and put it in the drinking water themselves. To the answer that it was impossible to get and hard to put in the water, he called upon the city clerk who said he'd checked with the drug stores, found that it has always been readily available, that it is accompanied by simple instructions for its use, and added that he believed that a year's supply would run around sixty cents.

The council wound up the discussion with a unanimous no vote and went back to the agenda and the audience went home.

Only other business not routine was passing a resolution setting a hearing on the application of the Alarm Corporation for franchise to lay coaxial cables underground to pipe television into Carmel. Objectors may be heard at the regular council meeting in February which is the first Wednesday after the first Monday (February 6).

$600 Donated To Clinic; School Board Meets Wed.

Back to work after being on the sick list with chickenpox, School Superintendent Stuart Mitchell was getting the agenda together this week end for the regular school board meeting next Wednesday.

He will report to the trustees that Mrs. James Tyson has added $600 to the $1000 fund she set up over a year ago to assist school children who have adjustment difficulties. The "personality clinic" has the donative services of psychiatrists, Dr. Eric Berne and Dr. Friedy Heisler, and a pediatrician, Dr. William Palmer Lucas. Attendance at the clinic is voluntary, and in a quiet way it has been of great help in a number of cases, Superintendent Mitchell says.

District Attorney Burr Scott has ruled that the school board may consider a re-roofing job at Sunset school as repairs rather than new construction. Since the building cannot get earthquake clearance, it is doubtful if the re-roofing job could pass the state building authorities, if it were undertaken under the heading of "new building". As repairs, it does not need to go through state channels. Object of the board in putting on a new roof is to replace the heavy tiles now in use, which are a hazard in wind storms and contribute to the earthquake damage risk.

Another report to go before the board is the hiring of Mrs. Alma Borchers as a substitute kindergarten teacher at Woods school, replacing Mrs. Althea French who has left for the Great Lakes Naval Training station to join her husband.

Plans are shaping up for the high school annual ski club outing at Yosemite, February 9-12.

Fathers' Night Tuesday At P.T.A.

Tuesday will be Father's Night at the regular meeting of the Carmel Parent Teacher's Association. Pie, cake and coffee will be served first at 7:45 o'clock in Sunset Cafeteria and the meeting will start at 8:15 o'clock.

A forum composed of A. G. Murphy, representing the Boy Scouts, The Reverend Alfred Seccombe, speaking for the church, Mrs. Beatrice Rea, for the school, and Eugene Harrah, for the parents, will cover what is being done in the field of guidance for the young people of Carmel.

Dr. William Palmer Lucas, pediatrician who has done extensive work in child psychiatry and psychology, will summarize and elaborate on the results of community cooperation combined with parent participation as it affects the child.

Everyone interested in the children are invited to attend.

WATCH OUT FOR EXPLODING SWEATERS

In spite of a state-wide search, the police haven't caught up with the person or persons who have been selling inflammable sweater sets. Over sixty were sold in Seaside. It isn't known if any have been sold in Carmel, but the Carmel Fire Department is asking anyone in the city who has purchased a sweater from a door to door salesman recently to bring it to the firehouse for inspection. One Carmel man has brought one in to the firehouse which had been sent him by his brother, who purchased a pair of them in Sacramento.

The sweaters are untreated nylon-rayon; are more inflammable than a celluloid collar, and have caused several deaths in Southern California.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press, Dial Carmel 7-3881.

Elections Slated
For All Saints'
Parish Dinner

Election of diocesan convention delegates and four new vestrymen will highlight the annual parish dinner of All Saints' Episcopal Church tonight at 7:00 o'clock in the parish hall.

Brief reports will summarize the past year's accomplishments of the women's auxiliary, men's brotherhood and other activities. Objectives for the new year will also be outlined to the parishioners. Meanwhile, the winter term of the church school has opened. With a family service for parents and children, it starts at 9:30 every Sunday morning.

Annual confirmation classes for adults and youngsters already under way will climax in a confirmation service by Suffragan Bishop Henry H. Shires on January 27 at All Saints' with Rev. Alfred B. Seccombe, rector, assisting.

P. O. Minting Money
Takes In $125,256;
Over $8,000 Gain

The Carmel post office is making money hand over fist, according to the yearly financial report released this week by Acting Postmaster Alfred Mollner.

Postal receipts for 1951 are $8,347.25 higher than 1950.

Most of the gain was in the last six months; and most of that in the last three months. The third quarter showed a gain on $1,865 over the third quarter of the preceding year, and the fourth quarter in excess of $5,193.

Total post office receipts for 1951 are $125,256.10; for 1950, $116,908.86.

Now that the receipts have gone over the $120,000 mark, the postmaster and assistant postmaster and assistant postmaster are entitled to a $100 a year raise, each. Mollner says he'd rather forego the raise and get another clerk on the staff.

CALL 5-3333

Well, folks, you won't be hearing from your pup reporter for a while. Fact is, the task of promoting our latest scheme to raise funds for the new Shelter has become a full-time job. Last year our efforts in this direction included: a grab-bag set up at the Del Monte Dog Show; a booth at the County Fair held in turn, by Rogule, the Boxer (assistant Shelter manager), Topsy, a young lady Cocker Spaniel, Remi, a Standard Poodle and various two-legged assistants. We drew up and distributed a report to various committees for a new Shelter, gave plans, and exposed ways by which people in widely varying circumstances could help. Several hundred Christmas cards were specially made and put on sale. Letters of appeal went out, and many days were devoted by some of our people to making personal visits to solicit donations. It all helped, and, considering the number of calls there are on everyone's charity, the response was most gratifying and showed how many people really care about the lost, abused or abandoned dogs and cats for whom the Shelter is a haven. Yet, even with the help of these kind supporters, even with expenditure for our project cut to a minimum, there's still a long way to go.

Our present scheme—the biggest and best yet—is the SPCA "Prizes & Surprises" Party, to be held at the Hill Theater on Saturday, March 1 at 2:00 p.m. Admission tickets cost only $1.00, for which we're offering value you'd hardly believe and real fun. Just think, one hundred splendid prizes, generously contributed by stores and business houses of the Peninsula, and some twenty surprises, donated by private individuals, will be given away at the party. In addition, there will be an interesting movie and, to wind up the afternoon, the sale by auction of a number of choice articles including a Ford sedan—used, but in good running order—and a beautiful piece of jewelry, expertly valued at $250.

Tickets are on sale at local pet shops, at Lial's and Graham's Music Stores, at Derek Rayne's and, of course, at the Shelter. Full information can be had from "Prizes and Surprises" Committee headquarters, phone 7-6684.

So, don't miss the fun! Buy tickets, and, at the same time, lend up a paw, folks, won't you?

—Sappy-the-Mutt.

P.S. Present at the party will be two engaging newlyweds, Mr. Sprightly Hopping, a well known athlete, and his bride, Pucette (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Knightly Bights, of Las Pulgas, California) wearing her wedding gown. An interesting pair, they love to meet people, and we'll all be tickled to death to have them with us. . . . Guessed it? Come and see for yourselves! —S.

Bill O'Malley Makes Statement On Little Nuns Suit

Bill O'Malley, Carmel cartoonist, told the Pine Cone last week that he had brought suit against the publishers of Extension Magazine over the ownership of his Two Little Nuns, his book of cartoons that has wheedled its way into the hearts of practically everybody in America, not to mention a half dozen foreign countries.

In explaining the complicated situation that has developed over the Little Nuns, Bill said:

"I've been selling general cartoons (free lance) to Extension Magazine since 1945. I was asked to submit religious cartoons, priests, nuns, altar boys, monks, etc. The greatest reader response to my religious cartoons was for my nun cartoons, which have appeared in Extension Magazine for the last six years. In August 1950, the editor asked my permission to publish these, nun cartoons in book form to help toward Extension Magazine's increased paper cost for the year 1951. $21,000 was the amount mentioned. I gave them my permission to do this. I did not receive any payment for the first 50,000 copies of my Two Little Nuns.

"I was offered a contract from Extension Magazine in 1951. In this contract I would sign over all my property rights to all of my future nun cartoons. I didn't sign the contract and returned it to Extension Magazine. After waiting five months for Extension to submit a more satisfactory contract, and none being forthcoming, I then signed a contract with E. P. Dutton for my second nun book, titled, Busy Little Nuns, which was to have been published in February, 1952. I signed this contract as the creator of the Two Little Nuns cartoons, and have been considered the creator of my nun cartoons since my first nun cartoon in 1945. Extension in their magazine and elsewhere have on numerous occasions printed the fact that I was the creator of the Little Nuns.

"In November, 1951 Extension published a book titled, More Little Nuns, by a Joe Lane.

"I am now suing The Catholic Church Extension Society of U.S.A. publishers of Extension Magazine.

"My book Two Little Nuns, is now in the 6th printing, 217,000."

Donald Linsdale Wins 4-H All Star

Donald Linsdale, Hastings Reservation, Carmel Valley, was named one of Monterey County's two 4-H All-Stars at a luncheon meeting held in Salinas, January 5. The other was Marilyn Palmer of Priest Valley.

Donald, who is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Jean Linsdale, is a freshman at the University of California, planning to major in entomology. His 4-H award came as a result of his five years of poultry projects, in addition to carrying a project in tractor maintenance and junior leadership.

All-Stars receive a cash award they attend the annual conference at the University during Easter Week, and from among their number four California diamond stars are to be selected who will attend the National 4-H Club camp in June.

In addition to his 4-H activities, Donald has built up an admirable butterfly and insect collection during his high school years, a hobby which has developed into a major pursuit in college. Before he entered high school he was corresponding with museum entomologists and exchanging specimens.

... Churches ...

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

At each Christian Science branch church next Sunday, January 13, the congregation will be invited to kneel in silent Communion.

Preceding the Communion a Lesson-Sermon will be read on the subject "Sacrament." The sermon will consist of citations from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, including the following:

The Bible: "And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me. Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you" (Luke 22:19, 20).

Science and Health: "The disciples had eaten, yet Jesus prayed and gave them bread. This would have been foolish in a literal sense; but in its spiritual signification, it was natural and beautiful. His true flesh and blood were his Life; and they truly eat his flesh and drink his blood, who partake of that divine Life" (pp. 32, 25).

Carmel Psychiatrist Tells Of Sensation At Convention

USSR, brought the reading to a close at the end of the period allocated to each of the delegates for paper and its discussion, and escaped questioning by the assembled members when Dr. Paul Reiter, chairman of the meeting, announced that time was up.

This was the end of the Russian participation in the congress; they entered into none of the discussions but sat smiling for the rest of the session. The other delegates assembled to poor knowledge and find remedies for troubled populations were left to their maladjusted world, without information as to how Russia had achieved its splendid prophylaxis, according to the two local witnesses, Dr. Heisler and her lawyer-husband, who accompanied her.

"It was all very unexpected, and the rules governing the meeting were of course followed," said Dr. Heisler, in telling of the incident, "but afterwards, I began to regret that none of the delegates had challenged the Russians." The United States representation was much larger than that of any of the other countries, and she was reminded of how typical the situation was, the United States as the strongest group in a world conference offering no opposition to imposition by Russia.

Of the other papers read, the Heislars found most interesting, a General Practitioners' Approach to Psychosomatic Medicine, as indicating an extensive recognition by medical doctors of the importance of emotional problems in the treatment of physical ailments. Also a concerted drive to provide medical service to schools, which means prevention and health rather than attempted treatment. Extremely interesting was a paper by Dr. G. Caplan of Israel, What is Happening to the Mental Health of Transplanted Workers.

Questioned as to the stand of the World Federation for Mental Health on socialized medicine, Mr. Heisler pointed out that all of the projects suggested required operations too great and expensive for anything less than governmental undertaking. Furthermore, the health of a country is the responsibility of the nation.

Other papers were on mental health of rural population, neurotic attitudes of industrial workers, training of physiotherapists, child rearing and cultural patterns. Especially memorable was a devastating inquiry into suicide among juveniles, with alarming statistics.

Considerable attention was given to community counseling groups in North Carolina, described by Dr. Lloyd J. Thompson, psychiatrist in private practice working in community group therapy there. Not only are children and parents counseled, but even prospective mothers and fathers.

Dr. Heisler, president of the Monterey Mental Hygiene Society, journeyed with her husband, Mr. Francis Heisler, lawyer and formerly a member of the Mental Hygiene Committee of the City Club of Chicago, to the Mexican capital principally to get acquainted with civilized countries. To this end, the Heislars also took a trip through Guatemala to observe first-hand conditions of life in more primitive colonial regions. As one of the 178 delegates to the meeting of the World Federation on Mental Health, she participated in the workshop on Problems of Leadership and Authority in Local Committees and heard authoritative speakers from countries from Turkey to New Zealand, South Africa and Israel to Sweden and Canada, on juvenile delinquency, displaced workers, community health programs and the like.

As for the impressions of the Heislars on their trip through Guatemala, a difference in outlook developed, it seems. Dr. Heisler

Teaters Back After Substantial Success In Painting And Ceramics

Artist Archie B. Teater of Jackson Hole, Wyoming, is no longer of Jackson Hole, but of Carmel . . . that is, if he can rent or buy a house for less than a king's ransom.

He and Mrs. Teater arrived here this week from San Francisco where he was commissioned to paint the view from the top of the Mark Hopkins for Fred Carsons of Idaho Falls, Idaho, who spent his honeymoon at the hotel.

Teater has been around considerably since he wintered here in 1946, had a one-man show at the Pine Inn, and Mrs. Teater took up ceramics with Ernest Calley at night school.

He has had a one-man show in the 57th Street Ferargil Galleries in New York, rolled across the continent with a trailer several times, east and west, north and south, painting the out doors scene and has been busy filling landscape and portrait commissions. Mrs. Teater, who took ceramics that winter in Carmel "just to be doing something" discovered a genuine love and talent, which won her a scholarship in the Art Student League in New York. She has taught, judged and exhibited ceramics wherever they have paused in their pilgrimages.

McGlynn Re-Elected President Of Carmel Art Association

New directors and officers were elected by the Carmel Art Association during the past week, and annual reports given. At the annual membership meeting held Monday evening, January 7, in the gallery, four new members of the board of directors were elected, Frank Myers, Jessie MacGregor, Kathryn Aurner and Kay Rodgers. Re-elected were Arne Halle, S. F. B. Morse, W. Harvey Williamson, and Leslie Emery. Continuing their two-year terms were Thomas McGlynn, 1951 president, Armin Hansen, Abel G. Warshawsky, Marjorie Doolittle, Lee Randolph, Donald Teague, and Sophie Harpe, corresponding secretary.

Thomas McGlynn was re-elected president of the board of directors of the Carmel Art Association at an election meeting held at 4:00 o'clock last Wednesday. Other officers elected to fill expired terms, were Sophie Harpe, first vice president; Frank Myers, second vice president; Lee Randolph, third vice president; Kay Rodgers, corresponding secretary and Donald Teague, sergeant at arms. Jessie MacGregor will take office as recording secretary, filling the place left by the resignation of Mrs. Malcolm Millard.

Patricia Cunningham, chairman of the forthcoming Artists' Ball, told of some of its features at the membership meeting. To be called One Arabian Night, the gala ball will be given at Del Monte Lodge February 23, and will feature a magnificent pageant directed by Charles Thomas, with costumes and designs from authentic paintings and prints of medieval Persia creating a true Arabian Nights' setting. A 14-piece orchestra will furnish oriental music. Those who come to the ball will find themselves in the Persia of the Arabian nights, as faithfully presented by the artists of the Carmel Art Association. Since it is hoped that everyone may see the ball, which is in the great tradition of artists' balls in Carmel, the price has been held to $5 a couple. The whole lodge, dining room, lounge, and terrace, is now in the process of being transformed into the Persian setting of the ball, Patricia Cunningham said.

Financial reports by Arne Halle, chairman of the finance committee and a report by Marjorie Doolittle for the house committee, completed the business meeting.

Announcement was made of an exhibition which Art Association members have been invited to hold in Salinas YMCA January 25-27. Deadline for the receipt of paintings is Tuesday, January 22.

It was also announced that the association had received a gift of a drawing by William Blake, Procession of the Canterbury Pilgrims.
